

Statement on Agricultural Sustainability

Ingredion supports the long-term sustainability of agricultural and farming operations that provide us with raw materials. We seek to:

- Promote safety among the farmers we purchase raw materials from including the production, storage, handling and delivery of crops;
- Encourage the efficient use of natural resources to minimize the potential environmental impact and support of the viability of agriculture and biodiversity;
- Support the use of approved biotechnology, while also recognizing consumer preferences with respect to genetically modified ingredients;
- Oppose the use of child and forced labor in accordance with local laws and globally accepted standards;
- Promote the responsible treatment of migrant workers;
- Use fair and ethical trading practices to promote economic well-being in the communities where we operate; and
- Support the reduced use of pesticides and promote Integrated Pest Management.

We continually assess our sustainable agriculture practices both internally and externally against the practices of our customers and other similar organizations. We strive to continually improve and we support organizations with the same goals as they also seek to continuously improve.

For additional information on Ingredion's sustainable agriculture efforts, visit www.ingredion.com and see the Sustainable Sourcing section of our latest sustainability report.

